Co-Sponsored by the WSRSL PALS
Program and Faculty Outreach Committee

DATE: November 25, 2014

TIME: 12:00 pm

LOCATION: Classroom 1 (CR1)

Each year, the Law School hosts visiting scholars from around the world, mostly from Asia, to spend a semester or academic year with us. We are pleased to introduce several of our Visiting Scholars to the Richardson Community at our next Asia Law Talk.

Professor Mark Levin will moderate a panel discussion among our visitors for a lively exchange addressing comparative law and legal education.

This will be a great opportunity to meet our visitors and to hear them talk about their research backgrounds and their experiences in Hawai'i and around the Law School.

RSVP by close of business Monday, November 24, 2014 to Dana Lum (denokawa@hawaii.edu); an RSVP is requested in order to get a head count for lunch.

Professor Toru Enoki is an Associate Professor of Law at Senshu University, in Tokyo. His research theme is the meaning of Constitutional Liberty.

Professor Pei Huang is an Associate Professor of Law at Tongji University Law School, in Shanghai, P.R. China. His research interests include Administrative Law, Law & Economics and Law & Society.

Professor Tomohiko Maeda is a Professor of Law, Undergraduate Faculty, at Meijo University in Nagoya. His research theme is empirical research of procedures and disputing parties in civil litigation and other dispute resolutions.

Professor Jongseok Park is an Assistant Professor of Law of the Faculty of Law, at Hokkaido University in Sapporo. His research theme is Comparative Research on Special Economic Zones of China, Vietnam, North Korea, and Cuba.

Professor Junko Sugimoto is an Associate Professor at Nihon University in Tokyo. Her research theme is Priority Rules under Bankruptcy Proceedings.
